

Three Dickinson College Students Die When Auto Plunges 160 Feet Into Stone Quarry Near Hanover Sunday Morning

Three Dickinson college students were fatally injured early Sunday morning when their car left the Hanover-Cross Keys road, climbed a two-foot embankment, pushed down a five foot, steel wire fence and plunged 160 feet to the floor of a Bethlehem steel company quarry, a mile north of Hanover.

The car landed on its four wheels and the crushing impact of the fall pushed the top down until it was only approximately two feet from the bottom of the car.

Two of the students, William Thomas Long, Jr., 19, a sophomore of Westfield, N. J., believed by police to have been the driver of the car and Hugh Alexander Lawhead, Jr., 21, a law student, Hyde, Pa., who were in the front seat, were easily removed through the doors that had bent almost double and were sprung open.

Seek Another Car

Thomas Hill Cornell, 22, a junior, son of the owner of the car, Mrs. Rosalind H. Cornell, Lock Haven, was wedged under the back of the front seat, which had been locked against the back seat by the collapsed roof. A Kuhn auto company tow truck was called two hours after the tragedy was discovered, and had to pull the car apart before the body of young Cornell could be removed.

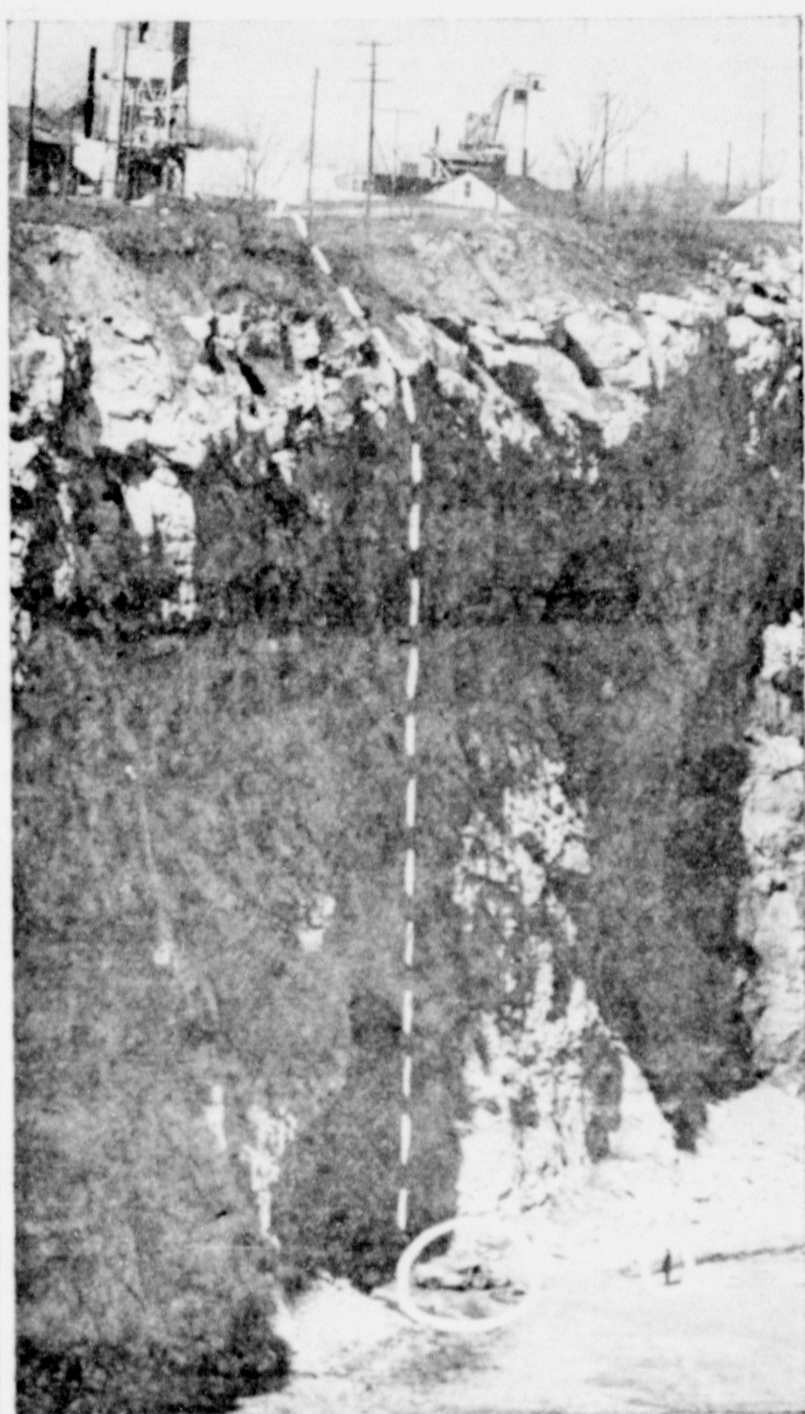

State police here said this morning they are investigating the possibility that another car figured in the fatal crash. Parts of another auto found near the point where the Dickinson car plunged into the quarry set police off on a search for a damaged machine.

The police believe the accident occurred early Sunday morning. The crushed car was not discovered until about 8 o'clock that morning. A motorist passing by the scene noticed that the fence along the road side of the quarry had been pushed down. He called the Gettysburg state police office which radioed Officer Robert C. Brady, then on patrol near New Oxford, to visit the scene. He found the bent wire, and then drove around to the side of the quarry. From that vantage point he could see the wreck at the bottom of the quarry. It was not visible from the highway.

Bodies Crushed

Dr. C. G. Crist, county coroner, said that Lawhead suffered a crushed skull, internal abdominal injuries, a fracture of the right leg and a severe laceration of the left leg. Long had a fractured skull, internal abdominal injuries, a crushed chest and several lacerations of the right chest. Cornell's injuries included a fractured skull, internal abdominal injuries, a crushed chest, a fractured right leg, a fractured left leg, a fractured right arm and a fractured left shoulderblade.

The bodies were brought to the (Please Turn to Page 7)

The smashed car in which three Dickinson college students were fatally injured is shown at the bottom of the Bethlehem Steel company quarry near Hanover where it fell early Sunday morning. A state policeman from Gettysburg (circled) stands near the smashed car. The car, also circled, ran through a steel wire fence and fell to the bottom, not far from a large tunnel under the Hanover-Cross Keys road connecting the quarry shown with a similar quarry on the other side of the road.

Old Man Winter To Quit Tonight After Weak Performance

Spring comes to Gettysburg and Adams county at 11:36 o'clock tonight but winter is not far behind.

The mercury dipped 14 degrees below freezing Saturday night and dropped to 21 degrees again Sunday night.

FOUR ARE HURT IN CRASH TODAY IN LITTLESTOWN

Four persons were injured at 1:10 a. m. today in the square at Littlestown, when an automobile operated by Albert Speelman, 305 South Queen street, struck the car of Robert Straley, Littlestown R. 1, according to Chief of Police Leon Gage.

Speelman was traveling east on King street and failed to stop for the blinker light, Gage said. Straley was entering the square from Queen street, and was struck by the Speelman car. Neither automobile stopped before entering the intersection, Gage said.

Robert Baughman, West King street, suffered a fractured collarbone, and Clarence Stacey, East King street, a lacerated lower lip. Both were passengers in Speelman's car. Speelman suffered a laceration of one leg and an injured finger. They were treated by Dr. L. L. Potter. Straley was brought to the Warner hospital with a hip injury.

Charges of driving too fast for conditions and going through a blinker light without stopping, were filed by Chief Gage against Speelman, and a ten-day notice will be sent by a local justice of the peace. Damage to the two automobiles was estimated at $1,000. The Straley automobile was forced against the entrance to the apartments over the Paul Bowman store on the corner, and the Speelman car "climbed" a pole at the intersection.

EAGLES TO NOMINATE

Officers for the ensuing year will be nominated at the regular meeting of Gettysburg Aerie No. 1562, Fraternal Order of Eagles, Friday night. Refreshments will follow the business meeting.

A four-year-old boy lost his life early Sunday morning in a fire which swept the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John P. Cann, 238 Highland Park.

One fireman was injured when he fell through a floor, and another was overcome by smoke.

Michael Ziegler Cann, who was asleep in his crib in his second floor bedroom in the two-story brick house in the new housing development south of the Warner hospital, was suffocated and died before his body was removed and rushed to the hospital.

Fire Chief James A. Aumen fell through a floor weakened by flames. Trapped with his body half-way through the floor, he was rescued by other firemen and taken to the hospital, where he was treated for cuts and bruises. X-rays showed no broken bones.

Mother Hysterical

Assistant Fire Chief Donald Jacobs, who with Melvin Millard, Marsh Creek Heights, removed the body of the dead youngster, was overcome by smoke and treated at the hospital.

Mrs. Jean Ziegler Cann, mother of the dead child, was burned slightly. She was also in an hysterical condition and was later confined to bed at the nearby home of Mr. and Mrs. LeRoy Smith, where the Cann family are staying temporarily following the fire.

Mrs. Cann said she was awakened shortly before 2 a. m. by the crackling of flames in the downstairs part of the house. She said she rushed to the child's bedroom but was unable to find the youngster in his crib and was driven out of the house by smoke and flames.

Screamed For Help

She said she first believed that the child might have been awakened by the fire and made his way out of the house as she did, and became hysterical when she did not find the child outside.

Unable to get back into the house, she screamed for help and her calls aroused two nearby neighbors, LeRoy Smith and Robert Troxell. Troxell attempted to enter the house, but was driven back by smoke and flames.

Cousins' Cars In Accident Saturday

Cars operated by Nevin Englebert, 47, Gettysburg R. 4, and Charles Little, 51, Gettysburg R. 4, collided Saturday evening at 7:15 o'clock on the Hunterstown road near the Central Chemical plant.

State police said that Little, with his family, were en route to Hunters-town when their car stalled and was pulled to the side of the road for repairs.

Englebert, a cousin of Little, approached from the opposite direction, police said, swerved across the road and struck the Little car. Little suffered a fracture of the right foot when his car, beside which he was standing, bounded against him. He was treated by Dr. Raymond Sheely. State police estimated damage at $50. Investigation is being continued.

MRS. GILBERT EXPIRES AT 84

Mrs. Julia May Gilbert, 84, wife of J. Warren Gilbert, died Sunday afternoon at 1:40 o'clock at her home, 33 Baltimore street. She had been ill since Christmas.

Born in Greencastle, a daughter of the late William and Catherine Rover Bickle, she attended school in Waynesboro and moved to Gettysburg in 1887.

She was a member of St. James Lutheran church and of the Mite Society of that church, a member of the Auxiliary of the Sons of Union Veterans and a past president of that organization and a member of the Ladies Circle of the Grand Army of the Republic and a past president of that association.

Surviving are her husband, J. Warren Gilbert, to whom she had been married 66 years; a daughter, Mrs. P. E. Freeman, Sacramento, Calif.; two grandchildren, three great-grandchildren, and the following sisters and brother: Mrs. Annie Baker, Washington, D. C.; Mrs. Harry Kauffman, Washington; Mrs. Joseph Brown, Waynesboro; Mrs. Alberta Thompson, Moorestown, N. J., and Charles R. Bickle, Orlando, Fla.

J. P. Solves Man's Lodging Problems

Robert Shultz, 22, Cashtown, got what he wanted Saturday night but apparently in slightly different form than he had expected.

Shultz, according to a report by borough police, went to the office of Justice of the Peace John H. Bashore and demanded a place to sleep for the night.

The justice informed him that he operated an insurance and justice's office, but not a lodging house.

Shultz then, according to police, became abusive and disorderly. He was arrested, charged by borough police with disorderly conduct and given a place to sleep for the night, also Sunday night, namely the Adams county jail. He remained in jail today pending a hearing before Bashore.

Flames Drive Jacobs Out

Smith stood on a large garbage can in an effort to reach the window of the child's bedroom. He broke the glass but was also forced back by the smoke.

Assistant Chief Jacobs was at his home on Steinwehr avenue when he was notified of the fire by telephone. He ran to the scene, arriving shortly before the first fire truck. He attempted to reach the child's bedroom from the front of the house by crawling on hands and knees to the top of the stairs, and was almost to the room when a window was broken, setting up a draft and driving the flames toward him. He was forced out of the house.

Uses Smoke Mask

When firemen arrived a few minutes after the discovery of the fire, a ladder was placed against the side of the house. Assistant Chief Jacobs and Melvin Millard, a navy veteran, climbed the ladder to a rear window of the child's room.

In spite of the smoke Jacobs was able to pull the child's crib within reach of his volunteer assistant and the two searched through the bed clothing in a vain endeavor to find the child.

The heavy smoke prevented them from seeing into most of the interior of the room. Millard, with the aid of a gas mask, climbed into the room, while Jacobs played the beam of a hand light on the interior and held a rope attached to Millard. Jacobs was partly in the room without a mask.

The Cann youngster was found on the floor near a window on the east side of the house. Millard carried the youngster to the window and handed him to Jacobs, who carried him down the ladder.

Had Jacobs' Permission

At the hospital, efforts to revive the child failed, and he was pronounced dead of suffocation. It was believed he was dead before he was removed from the house. Jacobs, partially overcome by smoke, had no clear recollection of having climbed down the ladder, or of the trip to the hospital. His condition was noticed by Dr. Harrison F. Harbach, 654 Highland avenue, who treated him and ordered him to bed.

Jacobs said Millard was driving to his home when he saw the fire. He told firemen, Jacobs said, that he had become familiar with gas masks and their use during his service in the Navy, and asked permission to don a mask and aid in the attempted rescue. Permission was granted by Jacobs, the latter said, when it became evident that the man was familiar with the apparatus.

Neighbor's Hand Out

Other firemen and Dr. Harbach prepared blankets and the new inhalator recently given the fire company by the Elks lodge, but this equipment was not used, the decision being made to rush the child to the hospital, just a short distance away, instead.

hospital for a laceration of his right hand. He cut his hand on glass at the fire. Millard was treated at the hospital for smoke inhalation.

Blame Refrigerator
Jack Arms, a representative of the state fire marshal's office, Harrisburg, who came here today at the request of Chief Aumen, said the fire apparently started in the kitchen of the Cann home, in an electric refrigerator. The loss to the house and contents was estimated at $15,000, partly covered by insurance. The first floor suffered the greatest damage.

Firemen used two inch-and-a-half lines of water and a booster line before extinguishing the fire. Fire apparatus remained at the scene until after 4 o'clock Sunday morning and the service truck was kept there until daylight. It was after daylight before all the water was shut off, and several firemen remained until 9 a. m. Fire Marshal Eugene S. Sickles stayed on the job until noon, to keep the curious from entering the house.

Delays Decision In Inquest
Dr. C. G. Crist, Adams county coroner, deferred decision on the holding of an inquest into the Cann youngster's death pending the results of the fire marshal's investigation.

Ken Deardorff Unanimous Choice Of Writers For All Star Squad

Kenny Deardorff, honorary captain and sharp-shooting forward of the Gettysburg high school basketball team during the past season, was one of two players chosen unanimously by the members of the South Penn Sportswriters association for the 1950 South Penn all-conference team which was announced today.

Don Grider, Hershey high center, who took the scoring honors for the league by nailing out Deardorff in the final game of the season, was also a unanimous choice for first team honors.

The lone repeater from last year's selections by the writers was Donald "Mike" Waters, Chambersburg's outstanding guard. Waters is one of two junior classmen on the squad, all others being seniors.

Dick Wendler, Hanover, third high scorer in the league, drew 18 votes while "Ben" Walker, Chambersburg junior, polled 16 to round out the first string outfit.

It was decided by the scribes that due to present style of play no positions would be assigned to any of the choices.

Chambersburg, only team to place more than one man on the first team, also gained a position on the second squad in the person of "Dixie" Wolford. Last year Wolford gained the first team but was unable to play this season until late in the year due to a fractured ankle received in football.

Lee Lynch, Shippensburg, top scorer in the circuit in 1948, drew a second team position after another vote was necessary to break a tie between him and Walker for the first team.

A lone junior, Harvey "Sonny" Jacobs, of Mechanicsburg, was placed on the second team. George Bogar and Cary Ahl, both of Carlisle, also gained second team posts. With the exception of Jacobs, all are seniors.

Waynesboro was the only school failing to place a representative on either the first or second team but took the lion's share of the honorable mentions with four lads receiving those honors.

BRADLEY UPSET BY CCNY 69-61; TO MEET AGAIN

New York, March 20 (AP)—Stopped once by upstart CCNY, Bradley's unconvinced Braves start a comeback tonight that could lead to a rematch in the NCAA championship game.

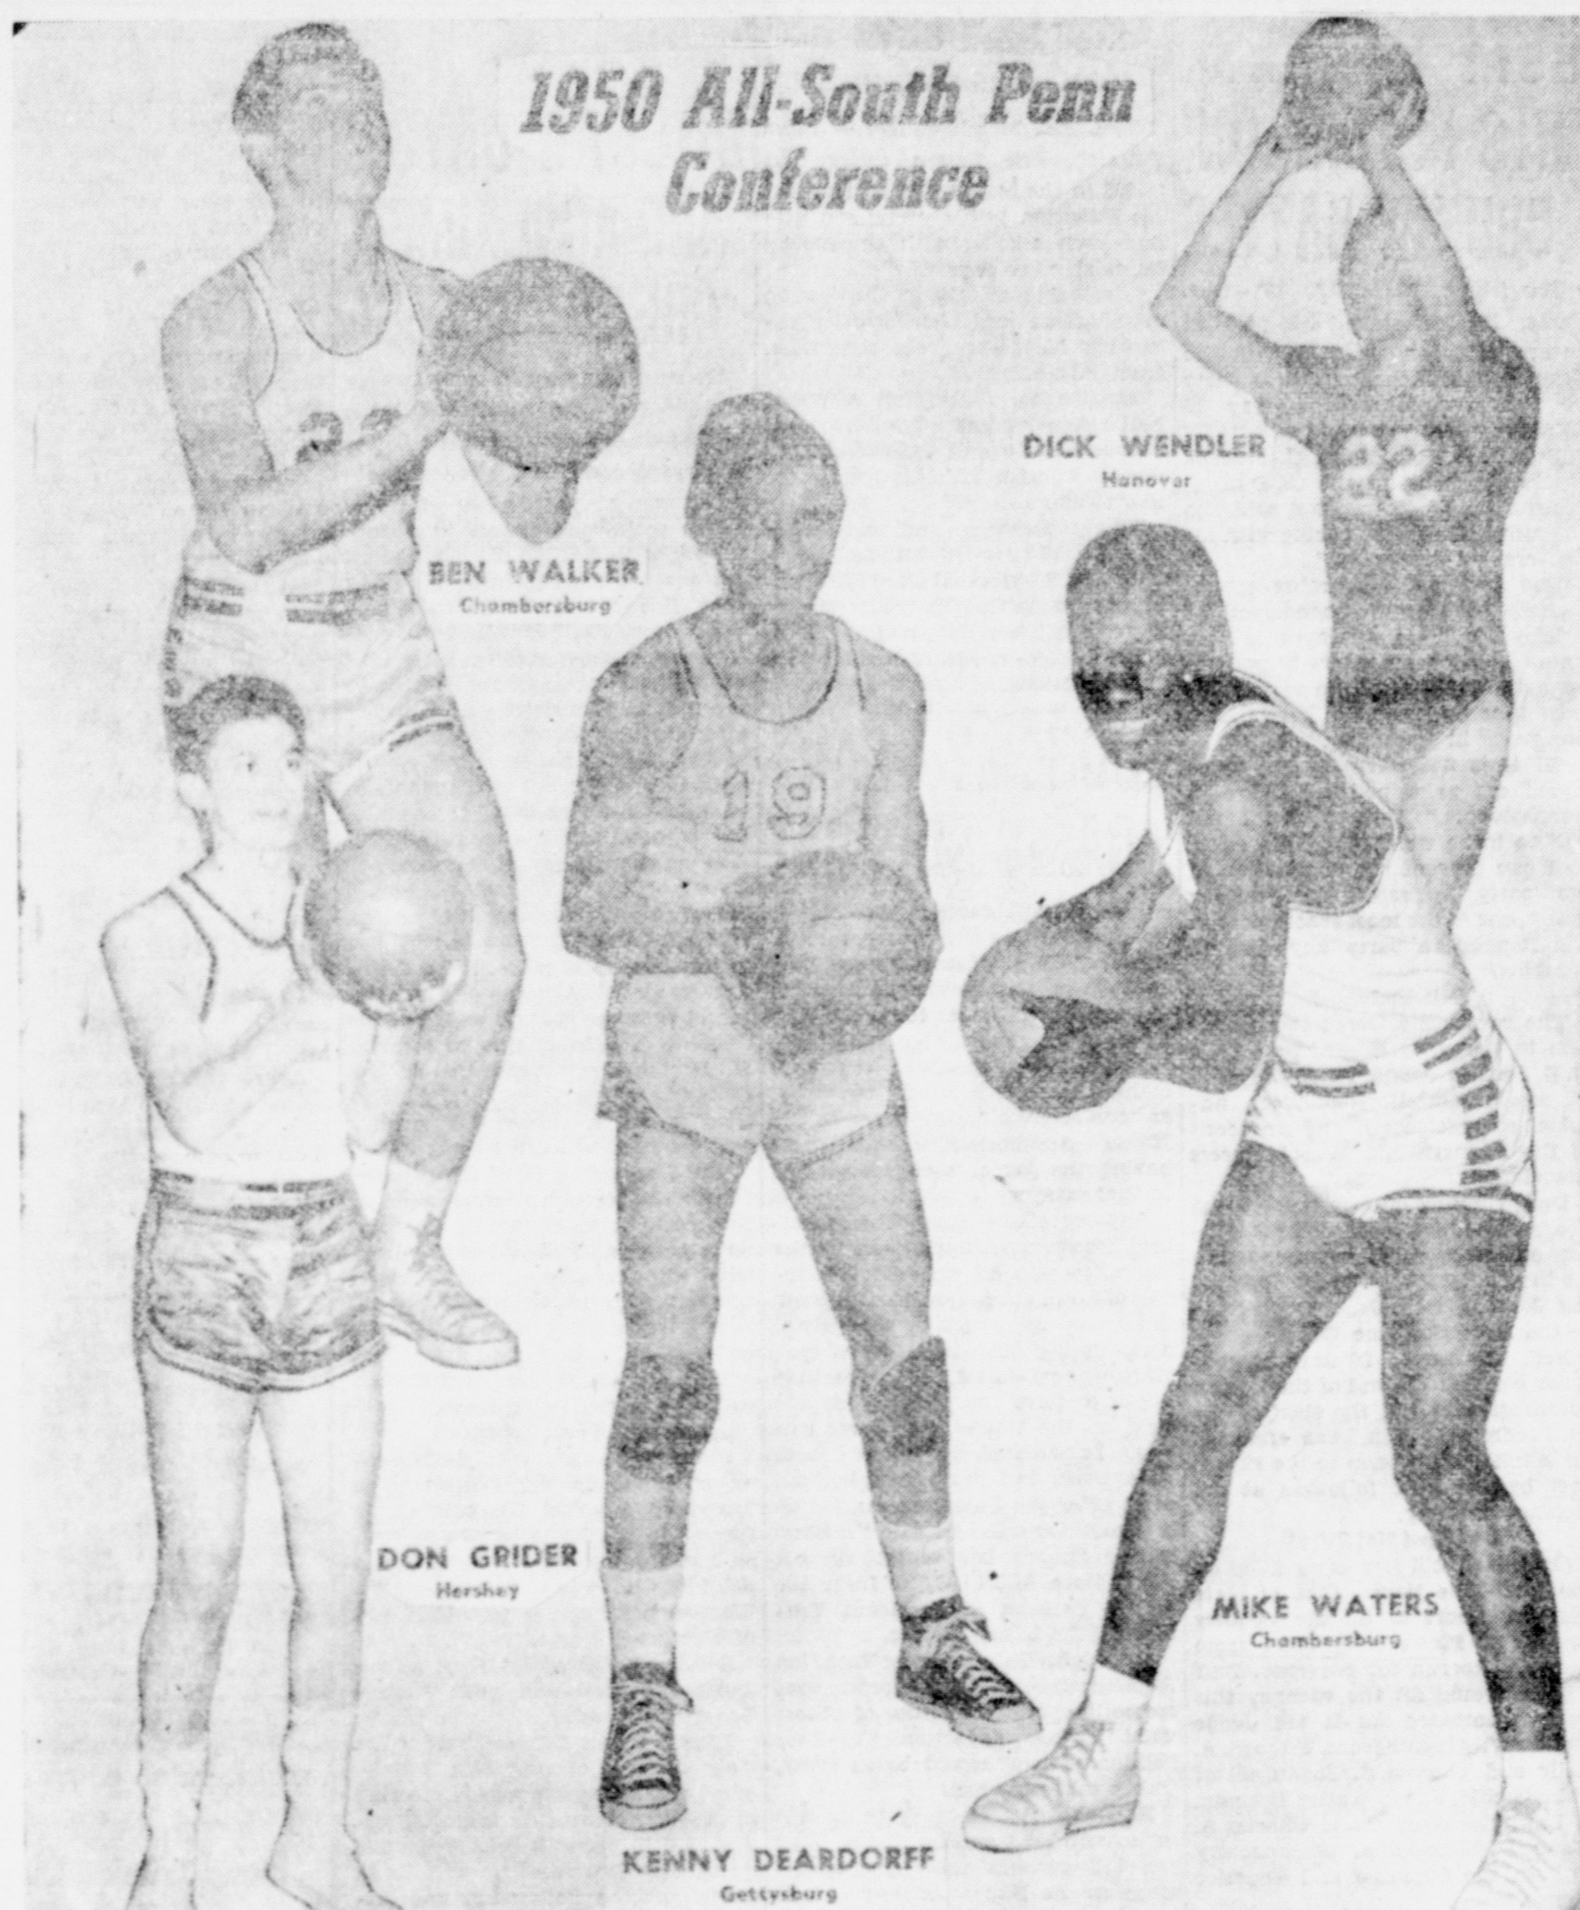

The Bradley basketball aces lost to City College of New York ram-ramping sophomores in the National Invitation Tournament title contest Saturday night. City College upset the top-seeded Braves, 69-61, to cap a sensational surge from the ranks of the unseeded.

But the Braves from Peoria, Ill., still are in the running for another national crown, the NCAA, as is CCNY. The NIT and NCAA tournaments are considered about on a par and each winner is considered a national champion.

Bradley vs. Kansas Tonight
Bradley will meet Kansas at Kansas City tonight for the District 5 bid to the Western National Collegiate Athletic Association playoffs. If the Braves get by the big seven co-champs, they join UCLA, Brigham Young and Baylor in the western, also at Kansas City, Friday and Saturday.

The winner of the western eliminations—which could be Bradley—plays the eastern winner—which could be CCNY—for the NCAA championship here March 28. City College, Ohio State, Holy Cross and North Carolina State battle here in the eastern Thursday and Saturday.

The winner of tonight's Bradley-Kansas game and UCLA are the favorites in the western NCAA eliminations. There's no outstanding choice in the eastern. Take your pick of Ohio State, CCNY or Holy Cross, with N. C. State the dark horse.

COAL INDUSTRY IS NOT SICK, HE SAYS

Pittsburgh March 20 (AP)—The coal industry is not sick, its leading spokesmen contended today.

They're a little bit irked about hearing the industry is in poor condition.

The latest statement to that effect, made by President Truman, has been followed by a bulletin of denial from the National Coal association.

And George H. Love, president of big Pittsburgh Consolidation Coal company, declares: "Can a sick industry pay the highest industrial wages in the world ($14.75 a day) and produce three to six times as much coal per man-day as foreign countries?"

"Can a sick industry spend millions of dollars for revolutionary machinery and new equipment during a few short years?"

"Finally, can the two parts of a 'sick' industry—labor and management—slug it out for nine months, x x x and then turn around and produce at the rate of 12,000,000 tons of coal per week during the first week of operation?"

INTER-DISTRICT PIAA PLAYOFFS ON WEDNESDAY

Harrisburg March 20 (AP)—Only four Class A defending district titlists today wear 1950 PIAA crowns at the start of the inter-district playoffs.

Only York (district 3), Williamsport (district 4), Somerset (district 5) and Bradford (district 9) repeated last year's performance.

The remainder of the list includes Haverford (1), Swoyersville (2), Altoona (6), Homestead (7), Westinghouse (8), Hickory (10) and Allentown (11). All have been in the playoffs before.

Rated as favorites to capture the state championship relinquished by Aliquippa are Allentown, Altoona, Homestead and Swoyersville.

Inter-district play gets underway Wednesday night with three games carded for that night and another for Thursday. Haverford meets York at Hershey, Westinghouse draws Bradford at DuBois and Somerset battles Altoona at Johnstown.

The clash between the unbeaten Swoyersville Sailors and the Williams Millionaires was postponed until the next night when the huge Kingston armory will be available.

That decision gives the winner only two days' rest before tangling with Allentown's powerful Canaries either on the same floor or at the larger Penn Palestra in Philadelphia. The Canaries drew a first-round bye.

Also drawing a bye are Hickory, surprise victor over Oil City, and Homestead's strong WPAL champions. Hickory meets the winner of the Bradford-Westinghouse game while Coach Chick Davies' Steelers go against the Altoona-Somerset survivor.

Only the Homestead-Farrell battle for the WPAL titles—the pass that sent Aliquippa to the state championship last year—could be considered close in last Saturday night's card of five contests.

Saturday's Results

Hazleton edged once-beaten Farrell, 38-36, but Allentown downed vaunted Mahony City, 64-40; Altoona decimated Conemaugh, 44-30; Swoyersville erased Plymouth, 50-39, and Williamsport smothered Shamokin, 57-23.

Tonight's action centers around a Class C western regional championship game and an eastern Class B preliminary inter-district clash—both moved up from tomorrow night.

Unbeaten Southmont of district 6 hopes to end its season with a triumph over Fredonia of district 10 in a game to be played in Indiana. The western regional title goes with the outcome.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

New York, March 20 (AP)—When the Chicago Cubs slashed a few farm teams off their list last winter, you heard that Phil Wrigley was getting tired of spending dough on minor league clubs that didn't produce major leaguers.

Cub farm executives have been doing a slow burn ever since, and now comes a communique about this year's class. . . . Last season there were 22 Cub farm products in the majors, nine with the parent club. This spring eleven more are getting tryouts at Catalina. We don't count Twig Terwiller, a college product with only 115 minor league games before he came up last fall. . . . Manager Frank Frisch is especially high on two rookies from Nashville, outfielder Bob Borkowski and Carl Sawatski, a big catcher out of Shickspine, Pa. . . . Maybe the Cubs will find nine farm products some day—but there's still the question: Can they win the pennant?

BONUS WANTED?
Coach Red Strader of the New York Bulldogs, who played football at St. Mary's 25 years ago when a kid asked nothing more than a place on the team, can't quite figure out the subject of a letter he recently received from a Bulldog scout. . . . It said: "He is six feet four inches tall, 240 pounds, 24 years old, a great defensive tackle, and ex-Marine, but inclined to give up under criticism. Strader really bucks him up." . . . Strader's comment: "Guess I was born 25 years too soon."

MONDAY MATINEE

Latest amateur golf star to show an interest in cash is Bo Wintinger, who has left Oklahoma A & M and notified the PGA he plans to play pro golf. . . . The Wisconsin American Legion is pushing pee-wee hockey in that state and hopes to develop a big program to keep the youngsters on ice. . . . Looks like a busy week for Ohio State athletes. The baseball and tennis teams start southern tours today; the basketballers take off tomorrow for the eastern NCAA tournament in New York; the swimmers are hosts to the NCAA championships starting Thursday and the track, fencing and gymnastic squads will compete in big meets Saturday. . . . Next week—spring football. . . . When Lehigh's wrestlers presented Coach Billy Sheridan a fly rod, he hefted it and estimated its weight at three ounces. . . . Whereupon someone asked: "Do you mean fishweight?"

The first recorded quarantine was set up in Venice during a 15th century plague epidemic.

Schuykill Haven of district 10 inaugurated the Class B inter-district playoffs tonight at Norristown. Kutztown, which drew bye in district 3, meets the winner Friday.

The eastern regional Class C title will be decided tomorrow night at Lancaster in a game between New Holland, winner over Coplay and Clifton Heights, and West Wyoming, which eliminated Locust township and Newton-Ransom.

Other Games

Other first-round Class B playoffs send Ashley, defending eastern titlist, against Sayre of district 4 at Waverly, N. Y. Kane's defending state champions against Merckwood of district 5 against unbeaten Irwin of district 7 at the Pitt stadium. All are tomorrow night.

Clarks Summit of district 12 draws the Ashley-Sayre winner while Creson of district 6 next tangles with the Irwin-Rockwood survivor in other Friday night games. The Kane-Mercers victor draws a bye directly into the state semi-finals.

The Cleveland Barons today ruled a solid favorite to capture the American Hockey league playoffs.

The Barons, winners of the western division, will tangle with the eastern kingpin, Buffalo, in a best-of-seven series starting Wednesday at Cleveland.

Tomorrow night's schedule sends Providence to Springfield in the eastern division "B" series—a best-of-three set. In the western section "B" series—also a best-of-three set—Indianapolis will travel to St. Louis.

In last night's action—the last of the regular season—Indianapolis trounced New Haven, 13-1; Providence whipped Buffalo, 10-4; and Cincinnati shaded Pittsburgh 4-3.

HUGE MOCK RAID OVER REFINERY

Sugar Grove, O., March 20 (AP)—One of the largest post war armadas of Air National Guard planes took part in a mock bombing raid on a gas refinery pumping station here yesterday.

The pumping station in this small town near Columbus was defended by F-51 fighter planes from bases in Ohio, Indiana, Michigan, West Virginia and Kentucky.

The attacking force—including B-26 bombers and F-47 fighters—came from Pennsylvania, Delaware, Virginia, Maryland and the District of Columbia. They were led by Colonel L. C. Faurot.

The bomber group with fighter escort rendezvoused near Pittsburgh and headed for the target. Storms over Columbus forced all planes to return to their home bases long before their scheduled time, but Colonel Faurot called the exercise a "complete success."

Air guard mobilization plans, Colonel Faurot said, are in such good condition that "we could organize a mission like this in six hours if any emergency came."

The pilots and air crewmen are all civilians who fly in their spare time to obtain a minimum of 110 hours flight time during the year.

State College, Pa., March 20 (AP)—Penn State has new coaches today for boxing and golf, but still is in the market for a football coach.

The 13-member advisory board picked two Penn State alumni, Eddie Sulkowski, of Pittsburgh, and R. B. Rutherford, Jr., State College, for the boxing and golf posts. Sulkowski has been acting coach since Leo Houck died in January, and Rutherford will take over April 1 when his father, R. B. "Pop" Rutherford, Sr., retires as golf coach.

Plague died down in Europe in the 18th century after 1,200 years.

Baseball Briefs

Miami, Fla., March 20 (AP)—The New York Yankees are taking no chances with Joe DiMaggio, their $100,000-a-year piece of bric a brac.

The Yankee clipper sat out his second straight game yesterday as the Boston Red Sox won their second of three exhibition games with the New Yorkers, 10-7.

DiMaggio picked up a charley horse against the Dodgers Friday. Rather than aggravate it, he didn't see any regular action although he took part in the warmup.

West Palm Beach, Fla., March 20 (AP)—Mal Mallette, the Brooklyn Dodgers' big rookie southpaw from the west coast, will undergo an x-ray examination of his ailing shoulder tomorrow at Vero Beach.

Mallette, picked up in the draft after getting rave notices from Hollywood Manager Fred Hamey, complained of a sore shoulder yesterday. Manager Burt Shotton ordered it to be looked into immediately.

The Dodgers played the Philadelphia Athletics yesterday, losing 8-2.

West Palm Beach, Fla., March 20 (AP)—Mike Guerra, the Philadelphia Athletics No. 1 catcher last year, is up to his old tricks.

Guerra now is the only absentee from the A's training camp after the arrival yesterday of Hank Wyse, 32-year-old righthander drafted from Shreveport of the Texas league.

Manager Connie Mack issued orders yesterday that Guerra is not to receive a suit until he signs his 1950 contract.

Wyse, on the other hand, was given a suit and permitted to work out although he, too, is unsigned.

San Bernardino, Calif., March 20 (AP)—Pitcher Hal Gregg, trying for a comeback with the Pittsburgh Pirates, is the delight of Manager Billy Meyer today.

Gregg accomplished a great deal in his comeback effort as he turned in a sparkling performance while the Bucs were beating the Chicago Cubs 7-2 at Los Angeles yesterday. He worked five and two-thirds innings, giving up only four hits, walking three and fanning five.

If he continues to show that kind of form, Meyer indicated he may become the regular relief hurler the Bucs need so badly.

Clearwater, Fla., March 20 (AP)—Life took on a brighter hue today for Manager Eddie Sawyer of the Philadelphia Phillies.

Downcast over the temporary loss of his ace right hander, Russ Meyer, with an injured elbow, Sawyer's face became wreathed in a smile yesterday as he watched Robin Roberts and Ken Heintzelman work against the Brooklyn Dodgers.

Roberts was particularly effective in blanking the Dodgers without a hit during his three-inning stint, walking two and striking out one. Heintzelman had more difficulty with his control, walking five, but allowed only two hits and gave up only one run.

Sarasota, Fla., March 20 (AP)—The Boston Red Sox, winners in six of eight Grapefruit league starts, entertain the Washington Senators today at Payne field. Rookies Jim Suichecke and Jim McDonald are down to fact the Nats. The Soxers split a week-end series with the New York Yankees at Miami, losing 15-9 Saturday and winning 10-7 yesterday.

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 20 (AP)—Howard Pollet, who was a long time in coming to contract terms with the St. Louis Cardinals, made his first start in a game yesterday against Cincinnati, at Tampa, Fla. He was touched for the only Cincinnati runs.

The Cards won 4-2. Red Munger, also making his first start for the Cardinals, retired nine of the ten men he faced. Ken Johnson gave up four hits in his four-inning stint.

Manager Eddie Dyer planned to use Ellis Deal and Gerald Staley against the Philadelphia Phils here today, and maybe Al Brazie if his sore arm feels any better.

Fullerton, Calif., March 20 (AP)—If it's any consolation to Cleveland's Indians, Pitcher Bob Lemon looked wonderful yesterday. He hurled hitless ball to five innings and gave up only two walks.

As for the rest of the fumble-footed Tribesmen in on the 5-0 pasting handed out by the San Francisco Seals, that's another story. They committed eight errors during the nine-inning exhibition at San Francisco, handing the Seals four unearned runs as a gift.

So Lemon, who struck out four but yielded two runs on his teammates' errors, got charged with the loss. Mike Garcia, who followed Lemon on the mound, gave up five hits and three runs, but only one was earned.

Cleveland will try to do better against Los Angeles here today.

19 CARS DERAILED

Today's Talk

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS
THAT AIM OF YOURS

We can accomplish little, or nothing, in this life, without a definite aim. It is even far better to aim for something you wish to accomplish, and fail, than to aim at nothing and get what you don't want!

There is an interesting personality in Hollywood whom all knew as Sam Goldwyn. Scores of sayings are attributed to him that he never said, but less ever dreamed of saying, but there is one I am informed that he did say, and here it is: "Never try to make a B picture, you'll make enough of them trying to make A's!"

It took that German physician 606 tries before he gained the right formula for which he aimed. Edison failed in thousands of attempts before he achieved the one he sought. Without aim or purpose, clearly set upon, we merely flounder, getting nowhere.

Aims of childhood are to be encouraged, whether that aim be one of a policeman or a train engineer. It's the aim habit that counts and which, in time, leads us all to our dearest destination. I like the thought I picked up somewhere: Make no small plans (aims) for they have not the magic to stir the imagination!

People who keep their chin up see farthest and if they give their eyes a lift they will see the star in the heavens to which Emerson suggested we ought to hitch our wago. It's the high-flying bird that sees the most. And which is the strongest as well.

It may have been a book, a friend, a question or motto, or the published story of a great life, that may have stirred or awakened us to our aim in life, but whatever the medium, we should thank God for it, and pursue it with courage and confidence. And by example be the means of awakening others.

That aim of yours can "make all the difference!" No one has ever achieved a thing without it. Keep yours high! And once entered upon, never desert it.

Tomorrow Mr. Adams will talk on the subject: "Freedom."

SIGN OF SPRING

King Winter in the lap of spring I know may still be lingering
And many bitter winds may blow
Before he may decide to go.
But, I one certain sign have seen
That soon the fairways will be green.

We still may have to shovel snow
Before the tulips start to grow.
It's much too soon, though skies are fair,
To change to lighter underwear.
But, still I think it safe to say
That spring draws nearer every day.

The robins I no longer trust.
They northward come because they must,
And as the mercury downward goes
The robins shiver when it snows.
More swallows I must see than one
Before I'm sure that winter's gone.

But still the surest proof have I
That spring is here or just close by,
I've tested it from year to year.
There is no doubt that spring is near
When smiling once again I see
The golfing parson on the tee.

Pittsburgh, March 20 (AP)—H. R. Madol, commissioner of information for the Luxembourg government, says his country likes Mrs. Perle Mesta, its U. S. minister, and she likes Luxembourg.

Madol, here for a speech, ridiculed reports Mrs. Mesta may resign. He told a news conference yesterday she wrote him recently telling him how much she liked her country and her work there.

DUFF STAKES HIS FUTURE ON GRUNDY BATTLE

Harrisburg, March 20 (AP)—Gov. James H. Duff staked his political future today on his fight with the Grundy wing of the Republican party of Pennsylvania at the May 16 primary.

But U. S. Rep. John C. Kunkel, Duff's opponent for the GOP nomination for U. S. senator said the executive is "shadow boxing with his self-created straw man."

The governor, addressing county leaders favoring his candidacy at nearby Hershey Saturday, said that unless Republican voters "repudiate Grundy-Owlettism, I am very confident that the people will repudiate our party in November."

"If it is necessary for me to be wiped out as a political figure in Pennsylvania," Duff said, "I am willing to be wiped out, if in doing so I can prevent the domination of our party by selfish, self-serving group, one of the most reactionary in the Republican party anywhere in America."

Belld Endorsed
The governor referred to the faction in the party headed by former U. S. Senator Joseph R. Grundy and G. Mason Owlett, Republican national committeeman and president of the Pennsylvania Manufacturers Association.

Duff, running on a primary ticket headed by himself and John S. Fine for governor, filled another place on the Duff-Fine ticket by appointing John C. Bell, Jr., Philadelphia, to the state Supreme Court.

Bell, who served 20 days as governor between the end of the Martin administration and the start of the Duff administration, was endorsed for a full 21-year term to the $23,000 post by the Duff followers at the Hershey meeting.

One Spot Not Filled
One place still has to be filled on the Duff-Fine ticket, that of state Superior Court to fill the vacancy caused by Fine's resignation from that post to run for governor. Duff said he would fill the vacancy this week. Mentioned for it are Judge Eugene V. Alessandrini, Edward A. Kelly and Thomas C. Eagan, all of Philadelphia, Judge Walter Brahm, of Lawrence county, and Charles A. Waters, Philadelphia, prothonotary of both the Supreme and Superior Courts.

Duff, in his speech, attacked Kunkel as "the Charlie McCarthy of the Grundy-Owlett setup" but did not mention Jay Cooke, who is running against Fine for the gubernatorial nomination. Cooke, while supported by the Grundy group, has insisted his candidacy is not tied in with any faction of the party.

Kunkel's Reaction
Duff defined "Grundy-Owlettism" as "government by a few, for the benefit of a few, at the expense of the public." By contrast, the governor said his administration "has taken the average citizen into account in the legislation that has been passed and the appropriations that have been made."

Kunkel's reaction to Duff's speech was a statement saying: "I believe it would be better for the voters of Pennsylvania if the governor would stop shadow boxing with his self-created straw man and get down to brass tacks. Instead of talking to people who are in the unfortunate position of being forced to be present to listen to his tirades, why doesn't he accept by challenge to debate the national issues before the voters of Pennsylvania?"

Thomas Di Ottavio, 21, Downingtown, driver of the sedan, was injured critically. At Chester County hospital in West Chester, his injuries were listed as a skull fracture, severe lacerations and burns of both legs. Armstrong was discharged after treatment for shock.

The accident occurred on the Lincoln highway at nearby Frazer. The truck was enroute to Philadelphia, the car travelling in the opposite direction. The antique shop, belonging to Scott Vogan, was battered and burned. Bishop said the heavy truck smashed through an 18-inch thick stone wall around the shop. Damage to the shop was estimated at $20,000.

DRIVER KILLED IN TRUCK CRASH

West Chester, Pa., March 20 (AP)—A heavy truck smashed head on into a sedan today, spun the lighter car around, hit it again and then careened into an antique shop. One man was killed, another injured critically.

The antique shop was demolished. The truck and the sedan burned to a crisp. And Cooper T. Bishop, Jr., deputy coroner of Chester county, called the accident one of the worst he has been called to investigate in 21 years.

Bishop identified the dead man as Eugene Parkosh, 23, Somerset, Pa. Parkosh was the driver and owner

Police Find Boys And Missing Money

Erie, Pa., March 20 (AP)—Mike Palermo, Erie tavern owner, put $9,005 in the bank today and turned his attention to his young son who had been missing with the money for nearly two days.

"I'm going to talk to that young man," Mike said shortly after returning his 11-year old son, Nick, from Pittsburgh.

Nick, who cheerfully admitted he'd taken his dad's life savings of between $9,100 and $9,200 last Friday, was just a little bit glum after the trip here.

Young Palermo and two companions, 13-year-old Michael Manning and 12-year-old Paul Youcan, were apprehended in the steel city yesterday. They still had $9,005 in bills, mostly in $50, $100 and $500 denominations.

ECONOMY PLAN GAINS SUPPORT

Washington, March 20 (AP)—A politically appealing plan to lop another billion dollars off federal spending next year was picking up strong bi-partisan support today in the House.

Its strong appeal to the lawmakers is that it would be aimed at "non essential" spending, with the House Appropriations committee having the job of saying what fits in that category.

Appropriations committee members disclosed that the plan as the committee started consideration today of an omnibus $29,000,000,000 bill financing more than 40 federal agencies for the (1951) fiscal year starting next July 1. The committee hopes to have the bill in shape to send to the House floor early this week. It is slated for House debate next week, but won't be voted on until after the Easter recess.

Committee members said the committee already has tentatively cut more than $1,000,000,000 from the money requests in President Truman's $42.4 billion budget.

Rep. John Taber of New York, top Republican on the Appropriations committee, and a number of others want further deductions. Another "billion or two" would be in order, Taber told newsmen.

Republican strategy probably will be to withhold cutting drives until the bill reaches the amendment stage in the House. Any reductions made by the committee could be credited to the Democratic majority because committee votes are not made public.

Pittsburgh, March 20 (AP)—A Pittsburgh man has the somewhat dubious distinction of being the first World War II veteran to report the loss of his state bonus check.

Anselm Kauffer got his check during the week-end. He endorsed it and went to a theater, leaving the check in his car.

When he returned, the check was missing. And it was for $500—the maximum paid by the state.

of the truck which carried steel plates. A helper, Bryan Armstrong, 21, Somerset R. 1, escaped injury.

Thomas Di Ottavio, 21, Downingtown, driver of the sedan, was injured critically. At Chester County hospital in West Chester, his injuries were listed as a skull fracture, severe lacerations and burns of both legs. Armstrong was discharged after treatment for shock.

The accident occurred on the Lincoln highway at nearby Frazer. The truck was enroute to Philadelphia, the car travelling in the opposite direction. ## DOLLAR DAYS ARE ACCLAIMED GREAT SUCCESS

Dollar Days' in Littlestown were acclaimed a "great success" by both merchants and patrons as the three-day event came to a close on Saturday night. A Chamber of Commerce spokesman stated on Saturday night that "both merchants and patrons are looking forward to the next Dollar Days." Each of the three days was busy for both customers and merchants but by the far the busiest was Saturday. A visit to the shopping district on Saturday afternoon and evening reminded one of the Christmas shopping season at its height. Patrons took advantage of the courtesy extended to them by the borough officials in permitting free parking all day on Saturday.

At 9 o'clock on Saturday evening, there were drawings in the various stores for individual awards by the merchants. At 10 p. m., there was a drawing in St. Aloysius hall for the grand prize, an electric washer. This drawing was in charge of Samuel H. Higinbotham, president of the Chamber of Commerce, and E. Paul Bigelow, the secretary. The washer was awarded to Ruth Leppo.

The Littlestown C. of C. is grateful for the borough's contribution of free parking on Saturday. Patrons, both local and out-of-town, likewise, expressed appreciation for this courtesy. The merchants today officially thanked the borough officials, and the Boy Scouts and the many patrons for their contribution to the success of Dollar Days.

Earliest Garden Harvest Green Onion In 3 Weeks

Sow Largest Onion Sets Deeply to Produce Green Onions. Three Weeks After You Plant Them the Harvest Can Begin.

First harvest which an amateur gardener can reap from spring sowing is a mess of green onions, and how good they taste! Three weeks after onion sets are planted you can pull up green onions and serve them with the dinner salad.

Sets, understand, not seed. It would take two months to grow even tiny green onions stalks from seed. Onion sets are an artificial product which men learned about from nature. The first onion sets appeared at the top of the seed stalk, where instead of a ball filled with seed, nature presented the gardener with a bundle of tiny onion bulbs, which he came to call sets.

Only a few varieties of onions produce these top sets, but when gardeners saw how much faster they developed than the seed, some inventive genius of the cave man era (onions are that ancient!) had the happy thought of using small, half-starved onions instead of top sets to sow. It worked! The small, half-starved onion had a second chance to make the grade, and the speed with which it produced a large onion told the experimenter he had stumbled on a good thing.

To produce these artificial sets, known as bottom sets, onion seed is sown thickly, and the plants are not thinned out, so they are too crowded to develop normally. When the small bulbs mature they are dried and stored over winter, to be planted again in the spring.

From 15 to 30 pounds of large onions can be grown from a pound of onion sets which do not average over three-quarters of an inch in diameter. To grow large onions, use the smallest sets, planted an inch deep. To grow spring onions, select the larger sets and place them two or three inches deep. The smaller sets do not make seed stalks, but devote their energy to maturing a bulb, which will keep well in storage, even in a warm basement. The larger sets send up an edible stalk in quick time, and the deeper they are planted, the longer will be the stalk.

Seed for Bermuda and Spanish onion plants is sown in the southern states during the winter, and when the plants are as large as a pencil are shipped north to be planted in gardens. They should be fresh and green when you plant them, and should not be set out for a week or two after your garden soil has been prepared. Space them four inches apart in the row. Onion plants can be grown easily in an indoor seed box, and set out in the garden when the soil is ready, and the plants are large enough to handle.

The yellow and orange blooms of the calendulas are extremely showy and have a long period of bloom. They are easily grown from seed sown in the garden in early spring. The plants come into bloom when quite small, and if kept from seeding and the summer is not too hot, will continue late into the fall.

HOW TO PREVENT DAMPING-OFF

Damping-off is a fungous disease which confines its ravages mainly to small seedling plants started under glass indoors or in greenhouses, hotbeds or coldframes. Its fungi live over winter and perhaps indefinitely in almost all soils. These infect small plants, causing them to wilt and fall over quite suddenly. In some cases black spots appear in the tender stems near the soil, resulting in seriously weakened plants if not in death. Because this trouble is so widespread and so frequently left uncontrolled, all plant growers should know and practice effective prevention measures.

Before outlining simple methods of damping-off prevention it is important to call attention to a fact that is often entirely overlooked in this connection. Experiments prove conclusively that even when damping-off does not kill the plant or even show visibly that infection is present, yields of most vegetable crops thus invisibly affected by the fungi are greatly lowered and crop quality impaired. Thus, measures to prevent the disease are a direct contribution to production.

There have been to date two main ways considered to reduce damping-off—disinfecting seed and sterilizing soil. In fact, the two practices must be combined, else if one is neglected it offsets the benefits otherwise gained by the other. Seed disinfection falls into two phases—Applying disinfecting materials directly on the seed and the use of protectants to guard seed against fungi on its surface or likely to lurk in the soil. There are several proprietary preparations on the market which are effective for treating seed. Each must be applied according to directions accompanying the particular named brand. Then too, mercuric chloride (corrosive sublimate), copper sulphate, and other chemicals are well known for this role. Damping-off is among soil and seed-borne diseases prevented by most of these preparations and chemicals.

However, there is a simpler and less expensive method for avoiding damping-off—growing seedling plants in sphagnum moss. Not only do vegetable and ornamental plant seeds germinate well in properly managed moss flats, but the plants make sturdy growth until they can be moved to roomier flats of sterilized soil or to individual pots or plants bands. Of course, the moss contains no damping-off organisms, hence the disease cannot gain entrance.

Sphagnum moss is sold by most garden and farm supply dealers by the bale or pound. It may be employed as the sole growing medium or used an inch or two deep on top of a layer of soil. One of the better ways to use it is to rub it through a coarse screen to break the heavier portions into pieces a half-inch or less in length. The material is then uniformly moistened, and a layer packed into a seed flat or whatever container is to be used for starting plants. After the surface is leveled the moss is moistened again and a thin layer of extra fine moss is sprinkled over the surface. On this the seed is sown and the container is then covered with glass and placed in a sunny window.

Seedlings are of necessity moved to soil in other flats or pots or bands because the moss contains no nutrients. This should be done as soon as two good leaves open. Thereafter, use of sterilized soil continues the freedom from damping-off if proper ventilation is practiced.

Chapter 27

For the first time in her life, Anne began to realize what it meant to have someone really in love with her. Romantically in love, that is. She had always known a father's love, Mary's love, the twins' love. With the break-up of her near marriage to Tony, she had begun to realize that she even had had some sisterly love from Adrie. But all this was nothing compared to Don's love for her which proceeded to catch her up and sweep her along on the wings of a great emotion. They leaped together, played together, even worked together on such things as the snow-shoveling. Tony was in perfect laughing accord.

She realized now that all her dreams of Tony—and they had not been many—had been of mothering him. Always it was to protect him from himself. Tony could never lean anything to her again.

And Don meant everything. She could say it aloud, as he seemed to include everything. It was just a month after his return from the West that he asked Anne to marry him and slipped an engagement ring on her finger. She had been surprised. The ring was not the sort to take her breath away. He said simply that the time had come to tell her he wanted her to be his wife and she said yes.

When Mary wanted to be told all about it the next day there was nothing to tell. When two newspapers called up there was nothing to report except that she was going to marry Don Carey and expected to be very happy.

Mrs. Carey was at White Sulphur Springs and telephoned warmest congratulations to her daughter. She would give a big party on her return from a cure she was taking. Adrie fairly gurgled over the phone in her enthusiasm. At last Anne was being quite sensible.

She went up to try on a new dress Roger had brought home for her in his impulsive way. This time his impulse had been quite correct, because it suited her perfectly. She danced into his room to show him, but he wasn't there. She ran down to the library. He wasn't there either, but someone else was. The afternoon sun flooded over the tall handsome figure sitting at the big desk.

"Tony!" She gasped. "Hello, Anne. You wonder how I go in? Have you forgotten I still have my key? And my room?"

"She came into the room quietly. 'It is Don's room now.'"

"And Tony is quite forgotten?"

"The newspapers will not let us forget our erstwhile friend Tony Raymond even if we should wish to do so."

"Bravo!" He laughed suddenly. "I came to see you, Anne. I needed to talk to you very privately."

"I don't think I should care to do so."

"How about my congratulations, Anne? You know you are catching a rich young man who has been chased in vain by many beautiful damsels."

"I haven't chased Don."

"I used an incorrect verb."

"You have changed, Tony. You want only money. You are getting it. You look completely satisfied. I have no doubt you are."

"And you, Anne? You are marrying a rich man."

"I am merely marrying the man I love. If he were out of a job it wouldn't affect my love in the least."

She turned away from him and walked to a window. "Aren't we wasting time, Tony? You didn't come here to talk. Your time is far too valuable for that, it mine is worth less than nothing. Think of all the well paid advice you could be giving."

"I am giving that now. Don't marry Don Carey."

"Why are we talking in circles, Tony?"

"You felt you know everything about him, don't you, Anne?"

"Everything I need to know."

"I wonder. He paused for effect. 'Did you know he is married?'"

Her eyes opened very wide and she looked at him in amazement. Tony picked up his hat and bowed to her easily.

"I came to tell you that. When you thought he was out with the cowboys he was out trying to get a divorce. He thinks he got it, but his wife says no, it isn't quite right. So she came to New York to get a good lawyer."

Anne fought for words. "You mean you—"

"Why not, my dear? There aren't enough murders to go around, are there? A little civil practice is good. And Lenore is a cute kid. You probably suspect that—or Don wouldn't have married her. She has been dancing with Celia's show in Chicago. Did he tell you he came through there to see her? Ask him."

Anne stood very straight. "I don't need to ask Don anything. He came back through Chicago because all trains do and he wanted to see the twins."

Tony's laugh was mocking. "Did he tell you that? Ask him about Lenore. I'll run along now so you'll have a chance to think about things."

"Good-bye, Tony."

"Like that?" He grinned. "Aren't you going to order me out and tell me never to darken your door ## again?"

"Certainly not. But I would like the house key, please."

She held out her hand. He put the key into it, then kissed her hand and was gone. She walked slowly into the front parlor and looked down into the street. Tony was talking to Roger—and laughing. Roger was not laughing. A minute more and Tony popped into his flashy car and whirled away. She whirled away. She drew a deep breath and then ran down to tell her father in and show him how well the new dress fitted.

Chapter 28

Celia's show opened in New York on the first Monday in May. It was a lavish production, it moved swiftly, it was tuneful, and Celia was definitely clever and ravishingly beautiful. Don had a box and his mother, Roger, Anne and the twins sat with him in it. Tony came in smiling during the intermission. His dark eyes were proud.

The boys shook hands gravely. Months of publicity had given them poise. Far too much for their grandfather, who had loved the way they jumped up and down when excited. Don introduced Tony to his mother, who bowed. Tony's voice was like honey.

"By the way, Anne, what did you think of the cute little dancer who did the specialty number in this act?"

Anne's lovely eyes were steady. "You mean Lenore?"

Don spoke quietly. "Both my mother and Anne know all about Lenore. Tony and Roger know too. Should I thank you for having convinced Lenore that she had no case at all and would be best advised to go on with her career?"

Tony chuckled. "I think I can claim credit for that."

The last act seemed very short and happy. When it was over they all went backstage to congratulate Celia.

Then it was all over and they went out to Mrs. Carey's car. The chauffeur saluted smartly and seated them, then drove off to drop Anne, her father, and the twins before taking his employers home. Roger ordered refreshment but no one wanted anything. The twins gravely shook hands and thanked Mrs. Carey and Don for everything. They might easily have been 20 years old.

Anne felt as if a cold finger had touched her heart. They went into the house and it seemed very dark and still after the noise and glitter of the theater. Roger sat down heavily in his arm chair.

"You boys must be very tired at this late hour. Why, it's after midnight."

"We don't mind staying up," they said in unison.

Anne patted their heads. "I bet you miss your dogs. And they miss you. We'll have to be watching for them all day tomorrow."

They nodded without special interest. Anne felt a lump in her throat.

She desperately posed her really important question.

"You are glad to be home again with Grandfather and me, aren't you?"

"Yes. We're very happy."

They said it but they most certainly didn't sound it. This was going to be far worse than she had thought.

Anne tried again. "Want Anne to put you to bed?"

They shook their heads in unison. "We can do everything ourselves."

They got up and said good night with little bows. Anne kissed them, since they didn't offer to kiss her.

"Want me to come tuck you in very soon?"

"We don't need anything. We go right to sleep."

She held them back. "Aren't you forgetting to kiss Grandfather?"

They kissed him dutifully and walked out sedately hand in hand.

"Father, did Celia tell you what she is going to do with the boys after I am married?"

He turned away from her. "I don't know how to tell you."

"That's simple enough. I'm not afraid. More publicity?"

"Not that. Her agent has decided that angle is worked out, as she puts it. From now on she is to be as young and glamorous as possible, so the children are not to be in the picture at all. Since she can't actually lose them somewhere, she has made arrangements for them. She told me so bluntly."

Anne stared at him. "I don't understand. You can't mean she would put them into a children's home."

"Yes."

"But that's madness. She robbed them of their Christmas and she has crushed their spirits now, but we can soon bring them to life again. I know we can. Tomorrow the dogs will be here and—"

"That's another thing, Anne. She returned the dogs to Don. They aren't coming here at all."

"Is she altogether crazy, Father?"

"Not altogether. She has a practical side. She can put the boys into a school."

"No! No! They are too young for that. They need love and affection. They need a home. We gave them a happy home here. We can give it to them again. Why can't she let them stay here with us?"

He shrugged wearily. "There are very good schools for young boys, Anne. I shall make it my business to find one for them. You needn't worry your head about it."

"You mean Celia doesn't intend to worry. The children have served their purpose, so she doesn't need them any more and dumps them anywhere that they won't bother her until she needs them the next time."

He drew a slow breath. "I'm afraid there won't be any next time, Anne. She told me bluntly she just isn't maternal. She said somebody might want to adopt them."

"Good Heavens!" Anne tried to steady herself. "Why didn't you tell me before?"

"She only brought them this afternoon."

"Why didn't you make her tell me how utterly heartless she is?"

"Would that have helped, Anne? You would have quarreled and she would have taken them away. She would have taken them with me. She knows Mary is giving up work after my wedding. I suppose she's right. But we have a few days to think any way."

Anne began to laugh softly, deep in her throat. She caressed his cheek. "We don't need to think at all. The children's home is here with us. We shall turn them into laughing children again."

"But your marriage next week—"

"My marriage may happen next year. Or the year after. Or never. Those children are going to be happy again. Don can wait—or not wait."

"Anne, I can't let you do it this way."

She kissed him. "Father, dear, you can't stop me. Everything is settled. Let's go to bed. Tomorrow I'll tell Don what I have decided."

"It isn't fair to him."

"It's fair to Rob and Roy. He'll understand that."

Chapter 29

Ann telephoned Don the next morning when she knew she would catch him at breakfast. His happy voice stung her as it bubbled over the wire. He had been on the point of calling her. The dogs had come and were demanding their young masters. His mother was giving orders. He would be down for them in a car about an hour. They were to be ready to spend one day or two days or lots of days in the country. The dogs would not take no for an answer. He ended up in characteristic fashion.

"And I have to tell you how much I love you, I love you, I love you. I thought of something new in love-making. Be prepared to swoon with joy at the sound of my voice."

Tears were flowing down her cheeks but she tried to keep them out of her voice.

"I must talk to you very seriously, Don. It concerns the twins."

"I think they are much too serious already. I have a big surprise for them that I was saving for our wedding day, but I simply can't keep it that long. Maybe you had better not say anything, except about the dogs."

"Please don't give them anything more, Don."

"Remember you are going to love, honor, and obey me, and begin practicing now. Be all ready, darling."

Slowly she went through the house to the back. Mary had gone shopping. Roger and the twins were in the yard sitting on the bench. He was reading to them and they were listening politely but not avidly as they always had before. She stood in the doorway watching them, her heart overflowing.

The twins saw her and smiled, but they were languid smiles, such as convalescing children offer. Roger looked at her.

"I'm afraid I didn't pick a very interesting story. It is about two boys but they weren't very good boys."

"Our nurse would have spanked them quick and put them straight to bed without any supper," said Rob.

"They were noisy and woke people up by laughing," said Roy.

Anne swallowed the lump in her throat. "But you used to wake me up every morning by laughing. Have you forgotten all about that?"

"No. We don't forget we got whipped either."

"But we want you to laugh, Grandfather and I. And you know you were never whipped here."

"We know. Mother said that was why we were spoiled brats."

"You never were. You never could be. I have a big surprise for you. Don is coming down to take us all up the country. Now go put on some play clothes so you can jump in the hay, climb trees, roll in the mud, anything you want to have fun."

"We have no play clothes. But we'll be very careful. We don't get dirty very much and we know how to wash carefully, even our ears."

Roger jumped up. "I can't stand any more of it. I feel like—"

Anne kissed him to stop completion of the sentence.

"Father, you have to get dressed for the country, too. We are all going. Even Mary. Don was specific."

"My dear Anne, you will make my apologies to Mrs. Carey and—"

"I will not, my dear father. You are going."

"Anne, I have decided I cannot accept your plan. You have been hurt too much by people's selfishness already."

She winked at the boys. "Shall we spank him?"

They shook their heads gravely. "We don't joke about spanking."

Roger jumped and fled into the house to avoid an outburst of feelings. Anne sat down with the twins to wait till Mary came back to tell her they were all going on a holiday today.

"Do you think Mrs. Carey really

CARIBBEAN AREA TO GET DOMINION STATUS QUIETLY

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(AP Foreign Affairs Analyst)

One of the most dramatic political developments of our day is proceeding among both the British and the Dutch colonial possessions in the great Caribbean area but with such little fanfare that thus far it has attracted small attention.

What is happening is that each of these widely distributed blocs of territory and the mother countries are discussing the creation of dominions. These dominions would have sovereignty but would remain a part of their respective commonwealths. The fundamental impulse behind these projects is similar in both cases, and is succinctly summarized by an authoritative British source in dealing with its own project:

"During the past 20 years it has been recognized more and more that a group of neighboring colonies can gain economic and social advantages by cooperating and by sharing their resources; and in some areas the results of administrative centralization, particularly in the technical fields have been very encouraging. One of the areas that stands to gain from centralization is the British West Indies, where many of the colonies are small and poor in natural resources."

"If you will look at your maps of the Caribbean area you will see the vast significance of these developments. Take the British area first:

The British possessions reach from British Guiana, on the Atlantic coast of South America, clear across the Caribbean to British Honduras. That area also includes Barbados, Jamaica, Trinidad, Tobago and the British islands in the leeward and windward groups.

In total figures this means an area of 99,962 square miles with a population of 2,968,000.

The British are proceeding to the goal of dominion status along some what different lines from the Dutch. The British propose to establish a federation first, and from this launch dominion status. The Dutch plan to proceed direct to the creation of two dominions.

Suggest Trinidad As Capital

The suggested capital of the British federation is Trinidad. That big island is strategically located and has a magnificent harbor capable of accommodating the entire navy of a major power at one time.

Territorially British Guiana is the biggest unit in this sprawling group, having an area of 83,000 square miles. This colony is a potential treasure house, for it reaches far back into an undeveloped jungle area which is known to possess great riches in gold and other minerals, as well as valuable woods. There also is much rich soil, capable of great agricultural development. Bauxite, from which aluminum is made, is mined in the coastal area.

Perhaps it is because she already is doing well, and expects one day wants to be bothered with us today?"

"Bothered? Why, she is very fond of you."

Roy shook his head. "Most people don't like children even when they say they do."

"Who told you anything like that? It is ridiculous."

"It was Mother who said it. That's why we're going to a boarding school very soon."

"You certainly aren't." She couldn't hold it any more. "I won't allow it. You're going to live here with Grandfather and me and be just as happy as you used to be. You can shout all night and tear down the house if you want to."

They sighed. "We don't like to think about what can't be."

She felt like screaming but had to control herself. Luckily Mary came in, so she leaped up to tell her they were all going out to the country. Mary was thrilled to death to be invited.

Anne smiled. "We're concentrating on the twins now. Will you see if you can find some old clothes for them, something they can wear to roll in the mud and be completely human?"

"I think I can. And I'll attend to it right now. Will I have time to bake a cake to take to Mrs. Carey so we won't eat her out of house and home?"

"No, there isn't any time, Mary. And it won't be necessary. You'll understand when you see her house."

"I know it's a palace and all, but sometimes the swifter the people the shorter the rations. I know stories I could tell you if I had time."

"You really haven't, Mary. You have to dress yourself, too."

"But I'll take along a little apron too. No matter how much help there is, an extra pair of willing hands can be put to work. Now for the angels. Come on, boys. Come with old Mary and we'll see if we can cover up some of that Chicago polish you've acquired."

They seemed to respond to her a little, but it was a far cry from their old dancing enthusiasm. Anne watched them go upstairs, then she returned to the bench to wait in the sun with folded hands. It was not going to be easy to say what she had to say. But somehow he would have to understand.

WONT RUN AGAIN

Allentown, Pa., March 20 (P)—U.S. Rep. Franklin H. Lichtenswiler (R-Pa.) says he will not run for reelection when his present term in Congress expires next January. Lichtenswiler, who represents a district comprising Bucks and Lehigh counties, made his announcement last night. He gave no reason for his action. Some persons close to the congressman, however, indicated he plans to enter private business.

to be rolling in riches, that British Guiana has been making reservations about entering any federation. She hasn't decided to join, and may not.

Export To U. S.

The Dutch group, is of course, far smaller. Its chief duty is the big state of Dutch Guiana (Surinam), with its population of 212,000, on the Atlantic coast of South America. Then there are the Netherlands West Indies—the Dutch possessions among the leeward islands and the group comprising Aruba, Curacao and Bonaire. They have a population of 148,000.

Surinam and the West Indies form two distinct units. Actually Surinam has a brand new constitution which gives it complete autonomy in its internal affairs. This is intended to be an interim affair, leading to the commonwealth project. A similar interim constitution has been offered the West Indies, but it hasn't been accepted due, it is said, to jealousies among the islands.

Dutch Guiana, like British Guiana, has vast potential wealth in its undeveloped jungles. Already its exports run to $7,000,000 annually. Its main export is bauxite and most of this goes to the United States.

Bradford, Pa., March 20 (P)—Governor Symond, of Millersville, is the new district governor of the International Key clubs.

Symond was chosen at a week-end convention of the organization, made up of high school students and sponsored by Kiwanis International. Other officers chosen include Treasurer Gary Best of Bradford and Secretary Lester Strauch of Ephrata. Reading was selected for the 1951 convention.

RAISING FUNDS FOR DEFENSE OF 'MERCY SLAYER'

Allentown, Pa., March 20 (P)—The plight of Harold Mohr, accused mercy slayer, today caught the imagination of the 3,100 residents of nearby Coplay.

"Almost to a man, we're behind Harold," said August Hobel, Jr., Coplay coal dealer and leader of the movement to back the 36-year-old ex-tenney worker with both money and heart.

"I make coal deliveries and people stop me every 20 feet to ask, 'When are you going to come around and collect from me to help Harold?'" Hobel said. "The folks in these parts just believe that Harold did what he thought was right," Hobel added.

Mohr is being held on a charge of murder in the shotgun slaying of his blind, cancer-ridden brother, Walter, 55. The victim had been blind for 15 years. His face had wasted away until only his lips could be seen.

Believes His Story

Tonight, the citizens of Coplay are holding a meeting in the town hall. They will plan a campaign to help Mohr in every way they can.

Meanwhile, the state moved ahead in its job of bringing Mohr, an ex-medical corpsman who served more than four years in the South Pacific, to trial on a murder charge.

District Attorney Kenneth H. Koch has declined to say what degree of murder guilt the commonwealth will seek to prove. Koch, himself, has indicated he believes the story told by Harold of the shooting March 5.

The district attorney said Harold's confession of the shooting was "a

E. R. BURROUGHS WHO CREATED TARZAN IS DEAD

Encino, Calif., March 20 (AP)—Edgar Rice Burroughs, who dug a literary gold mine in the African jungle with Tarzan, is dead.

Burroughs, author, died yesterday, but the ape-man he created will live on to delight other generations of youngsters the world over.

Fifteen novels were awaiting publication when Burroughs died of a heart attack in bed yesterday morning. A movie producer said he had contracted to make 15 more Tarzan films. A tradition born in 1912, when Burroughs sold his first Tarzan book, apparently will continue for years to come.

The 74-year-old multimillionaire writer became ill three months ago but up to that time had kept busy turning out new stories about his jungle hero.

Made Millions
"Tarzan of the Apes" brought Burroughs only $700. After its phenomenal success, he retained control over his literary works and the royalties reached fabulous proportions. From movie rights alone he is reported to have realized $5,000,000.

Almost 40,000,000 Tarzan books have been sold. Some have been translated into as many as 56 languages. The ape-man, portrayed by such actors as Johnny Weissmuller, Buster Crabbe and currently Lex Barker, has appeared in 27 movies. Burroughs never set foot in Africa, the locale of his jungle stories. He used to recall with delight, however, that world travelers frequently complimented him on the authen-were prepared by the various patrols.

The scouts were accompanied by Acting Scoutmaster John Way, Assistant Scoutmaster Edward B. Gelman, and Luther D. Snyder, a member of the troop committee.

The weekly meeting of the troop will be held Wednesday at 7 p. m. in the basement of the Littlestown State bank building. It was announced that the definite dates for the Appalachian trail hike will be April 29 and 30. A nature course at Camp Conewago for the entire district has been announced for May 6 and 7. Future plans for the local scouts include patrol overnight hikes, tie of his settings.

Shortly after the sale of his first books, Burroughs bought the nearby Gen Harrison Gray Otis estate in the suburbs of Los Angeles and built a home, "Tarzana," in its center. He subdivided the property and the city of Tarzana grew up around his home. He sold the house after he and the former Emma Hulbert, whom he had married in 1900, were divorced in 1934. A year later he married Florence Dearholt. That marriage ended in divorce in 1941. He had three children, Joan, John and Hulbert by his first marriage. They were at his bedside when he died.

one-day canoe trips and a one-day trip to the battlefield at Gettysburg. The Rev. Fr. George A. Lavelle, pastor of St. Aloysius Catholic church, announced on Sunday morning that the ninth annual banquet of the Southern Regional Holy Name Union will be held at St. Joseph's parish, Hanover, on Thursday, April 20. Reservations are to be made with the pastor not later than April 17.

Men's Chorus To Sing
"A Solemn Caution" was the theme of the sermon by the Rev. David S. Kammerer, pastor of St. Paul's Lutheran church at the union vesper service held Sunday evening in church sponsored by the Littlestown Ministerium. The service was conducted by the host pastor, the Rev. Harvey B. Simons. A vocal solo, "The Holy City" was presented by Miss Beverly Gibson. She was accompanied on the organ by Mrs. Harvey B. Simons.

The service on Sunday evening was the last preaching service of the present series of union vesper services by the ministerium. A concluding service in the present series of vesper services will be held next Sunday evening in St. Paul's Lutheran Men's chorus. The offering at this concluding service will be given toward the support of the religious work at Mont Alto sanatorium.

Frank E. Basehor, administrative assistant and teacher of history in the Littlestown junior-senior high school was guest speaker on Sunday evening at the Christian Endeavor society of Christ Reformed church. His topic was "Every Christian Winning Others." The leader for the evening was Miss Janet Gerick. A song service was in charge of Theodore Bair with Mrs. Earl Baker as pianist. Scripture was read by Miss Lucille Shoemaker and prayer was offered by Richard Berwager. "Deep Purple" was the title of an accordion solo presented by Theodore Bair.

Glenn Unger, president, conducted a short business session. A contribution of $3 in the form of a dime bank was voted to the Adams county Christian Endeavor Union. Miss Miriam Dutter, will be the leader next Sunday evening and Harry Heindel, Hanover, a teacher in the public schools of Penn township, York county, will be the guest speaker. His topic will be "Evangelize through Church Vacations."

Gas Pressure Like Rock in Stomach

One Gettysburg man stated that for 10 years he felt like he had a rock in his stomach. This feeling was due to the lump of undigested food he always had inside of him. His food would turn to gas. ## Seek To Revive Two-Party Policy

Washington, March 20 (AP)—Administration leaders were reported making strong efforts today to revive the bipartisan foreign policy. It has been sagging in the continued absence from Congress of Senator Vandenberg.

Recovering from a lung operation last fall, the Michigan Republican has been ill and unable to attend any Senate sessions since February 2.

In his absence, bipartisan cooperation on foreign affairs has deteriorated to such an extent that the administration is reported to have enlisted Attorney General McGrath, a former senator, in an effort to McGrath has talked to some Republican Senators about the matter. Possibly as a result of his urging, the State Department has begun a series of meetings with senators of both parties.
